CD244:38, recheck. Also, 40-43

Betty Parrot comes through like an informant, having [redacted] "made inquiries" and "been unable to develop any information" for good old Regis Kennedy. But on what? the unlikely, not the significant or possibly significant.

Erick here is apparently Trunbach. This is a different version, having him knowing Oswald rather than Clay Bertrand, the content of the other report.

Beeler was not the best guy to ask, least of all about Thornley. I think his pal's name was Thompson.

With Regis Kennedy the man seemingly looking for a gay named Clay Bertrand, how he ever missed Lafitte's in Exile can't be explained. This is 29 days after the assassination.

And, he had to have thought of Shaw, who was also know to hang out at that corner.
